Well done harlequines (I think that's how u spell it but Sam reckons its wrong) it was a really good show & the last 2 weeks of commitment paid off. I wish more commitment was shown through the semester, but we learn from lessons. thank abt for all the help & commitment shown from Cobos & Sue (I luu u people dearly). Any way My ~~fore~~ hand is sore & cold.

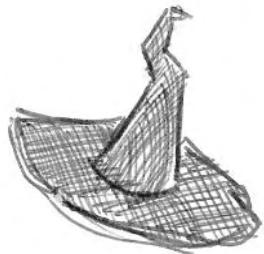

XOXO Jennah

Well guys - Juniors very good. A great laugh. Loved the commands rolls. Seniors I feel that you did pull it off but a better attitude towards commitment is required. You need to foster the words TEAM WORK and put your all into every lesson. Overall not bad.

Maile Thow

Firstly, thank you to Jose & Sue for all the hard work! And, to all the MTS members (adult) who came down to help. Lastly, thanks to the kids who, despite an obvious & frustrating lack of commitment & drive, managed to scrounge together a top show. I hope we can accept a team, ad continue this brilliant program in future years. I'm glad I've been a Harlequin (that's how you spell it!)

Brilliant.

This play was fantastic. I laughed and I cried.

This is the second time I have seen it - and I would come back again & again. The lives of all the women touched my soul very deeply: I felt for them and their lives. Thankyou to all the performers for living their lives - if I wasn't for them I wouldn't of been able to feel it:

Hilarious!!!

The monologue was personal and compelling. Every woman was represented and you were true to all of us. Thank you for bringing this to such a patriarchal city. You all make us proud to be women. Reclaim respect and appreciation of our vagina. See your beautiful, fine you have to go professional and you have done a great job. Thank you. I brought my partner the first time and he loved it. The length of the play was not an issue. I could have been there and had a lot longer with this type of entertainment and been engrossed and amused. A great play and well presented. This has had to have been one of the best plays I have seen so far in the many years I have been coming here.

An excellent production! Congratulations Lynne Collins. A very difficult play done extremely well. A credit to all players. It is very hard to judge acting players as each had their 'time' and did so very well. I wish you all the same success in your future productions. Judging by the way the audience were drawn closely into the events, the production must be considered a brilliant success. John Morris

Well done Mills.
